Rube Marquard Throttles Cubs With Assistance of Snodgrass--- New Yorks Vanquish Browns

CATCH BY SNODGRASS MAKES GAME EASIER

With Marquard Pitching Well the Giants Win Handily From Cubs.

With Bases Filled Zim Smashes One, but Right Fielder Nabs It.

The Giants and Cincinnatis have the race for first place more to themselves as a result of yesterday's battling. The leaders won from the Cubs and the irrepressible Reds smothered the Quakers. The Brooklyns crumpled neath the attack of the Cardinals, who jumped up to fourth place from sixth. The Pirates came to grief in Boston.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—The Naps were hanging back in the shade of the umbra-geous bench until the time limit expired before resuming the precipice. In workhanging back in the shade of the umbraing hours the Giants moved and hustled more spryly than the Cubs, who, with one or two exceptions, moved wearily and one or two exceptions, moved wearily and perfunctorily.

The fact is the Cubs were under the dominion of Rube Marquard so completely as to be necessarily docile. The Rube had everything even if he didn't kee Corriden from making a home run, which was the only tally the ancient, but con siderably altered, enemy acquired. Among other assets possessed by Marquard in the baffling of the Cubs was a wide pace scale, from very fast to slow, with intermediate speed, all cleverly intermingled and with accurate control.

The Glants made a few timely hits off Cheney, thereby making up for what they lacked in quantity off the talented Chicago spitballer. Bescher, Burns, Doyle, Grant and Meyers so twirled their bats that a sufficient number of seasonable base hits caromed off their woodenware to lay the foundation and erect the superstructure for a victory. A base on balls by Cheney and a passed ball by Roger de Coverley Bresnahan fitted in the New Y.rk scheme of run getting.

A new pairing of the umpires had Rigler and Hart as a team for the strife. Hart was on the bases and in the fourth inning he made a decision which from the stands looked ludierous. His eyes may have been sharper than the spectators', and he may have seen what they couldn't bee. Sometimes the hand is quicker that the eye. It was in this case if Hart's decision was right.

Keating was on first with two out when Marquard threw over to nip him. Keating stepped back to the bag apparently without being touched. Hart motioned him out. Some of the Chicago players laughed, some looked blank, some squawked. "Don't they have to touch them?" asked Bill Sweensy in derision. "Force play, Bill," was Bresnahan's sarcastic comment, but Eddle Grant turned to the Chicago, bench holding his sleeve to the Chicago bench holding his sleeve as if to say that that's where Merkle touched Keating. Maybe he did, but if so it was the lightest and still swifter of touches.

Bresnahan's throwing to bases wasn't good, Roger, be it known, having just re-entered the game after being laid up with a sore hand. He pegged too high to get such fast journeymen as Burns, Grant and Doyle. Grant stole in the first after and Doyle. Grant stole in the first after a single to centre, Doyle sent a hit ploughing to the same tract, bringing Grant home, although the latter had to make a detour around Zimmerman.

The only base on balls issued by Cheney and the only one of the game up locked the door to another New York run, Stock was the recipient in the second inding. On the run and hit he reach third when Meyers singled to right. Marquard, with a short jab stroke, clipped the ball between Zimmerman and the line.

Zim had to throw while off his balance and lob over Stock's head and Stock bundled over the plate before Bresnahan could reach him.

The Cubs cracked three singles in the third. They came between outs. Bresnahan filed to Stock and Cheney singled off Grant's glove. Leach drove safely to centre and Good filed to Bescher. Saler made an infield hit. Zimmerman smashed to right, but a fine running catch by Snodgrass did him out of a hit and made a big difference in the outlook. The drive but for the catch would have piled up three runs sure. It was the turning point of the game.

Cooper seldom was able to locate the plate and when he did the locals hit freely. Rudolph kept Pittsburg's hits well scattered and had fine support. Wagner's 3,001st hit, did not come until the eighth inning. It was a line double 40 centre and resulted in Mowrey scoring the visitors' second run. The score:

Three Brown pitchers essayed the same end at which the lengthy Caldwell was aiming, the winning of a ball game. Wiley Taylor retired after three rounds of bombardment. Walter Leverenz, making a belated appearance on the local lot, gave up the ghost at the end of the eighth, and Bill James managed to keep the visitors from troubling the rest of the way. The cool and collected Mr. Caldwell had things much his own way except in the second, when Clarence Walker tagged him for a triple and young Leary followed with a base hit, scoring Walker. Errors played their part of the other Brown runs and Caldwell was really never in trouble.

We had with us to-day, also, a Mr. Hartle, a ruddy haired youth the Peerless.

ris, a ruddy haired youth the Peerless Leader introduced as a first baseman. He appears to be one. So far he has not batted in the big leagues this year, as he hypnotized the two Brown pitchers into passing him his first three trips to the plate, sacrificed on the fourth occasion, though safe on Leary's error, and departed from our midst after reaching third, where Warhop hopped from the dugout to run for him. Peckinpaugh started the trouble in the first round, after Maisel had died and Truesdale had fanned, by singling and

Times as a Starter

THE offensive play of Miller Huggins, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, against Brooklyn at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon, developed a most unusual angle. While Huggins did not secure anything that even remotely resembled a base hit he scored just one-third of his side's runs. He was up five times and reached first on four occasions, each time with none out, as the result of a pass from Allen. The only time he failed to get on was in the eighth inning when he fouled to Smith after having three balls and two strikes called.

PICKUPS AT EBBETS FIELD.

Bill Byron, the Chesterfield of Tener's staff, vented his spleen on old Tabasco Kid Ebbets-Field in the seventh inning.

Looked as if Butler had a legitimate kick coming in the ninth when he protested the third strike. Orth had to remove him; his fellow jurist had established the precedent with Elberfeld.

Cozy Dolan of Hilltop fame was not among the pastimers at Ebbets Field. He was called away to Oshkosh yesterday morn-ing because of the sudden death of his father-in-law. Robinson has asked Huggins to let him go right back after the Dodgers this afternoon. It is pretty nearly a cinch that this good left hander will not spill another three runs lead for some time to come. lead for some time to come.

Snyder sizes up as a pretty fine thrower in spite of the three piliters chalked against him. It was the pitcher's fault that Cutshaw and Riggert were successful in a double steal. Hummel should have been the easiest sort of a victim had Butler handled the threw cleanly.

this same kind. At least the victory of the Cardinals over Brooklyn at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon might justify the truth of such a statement. St. Louis took the opening game from the Dodgers in eleven innings by a score of 6 to 4. Allen, the very decided in and outer of Wilbert Robinson's staff was bumped for three runs in the first inning. He was left in the game eventually to hurl it away with a wild fling in the eleventh inning. Robinson, the celebrated south-paw of Miller Huggins, who usually can win any time he has a couple of runs work on, lasted only long enough to retire one man. Brooklyn hammered him out of the box on four well placed hits, an excusable error and a double steal. But in driving him to the stable the Dodgers invited trouble. Perritt, the big right hander who succeeded, was just as good as his predecessor had been bad. Start-ing all square with Allen in the second, he outpitched and outgamed his erratic

St. Louis's run in the fourth was clean home run drive by Butler. Brook lyn's tying run came in the eighth, Mc-Carty's double following on the heels of a pass to Cutshaw and pretty sacrifice by Riggert.

Butler was driven from the field for disputing a called third strike in the ninth. Whitted went to third and Beck was shifted to short to fill the gap. Thus the contest rolled on until the eleventh with neither side having a really good opening. Allen lost his own game here. He passed Huggins for the fourth time of the day. When Magee laid down a bunt the pitcher threw over the head of Cutshaw, who covered first, for a two base error. Cather's long single to centre scored the brace of runs. The score:

Cole Agent Closes Up Much of His Territory-Other Motor News.

Motorists going to the polo matches on Saturday will have excellent roads to the Meadow Brook Hunt Club Polo Field. Some of these roads have just been resurfaced. The Bueau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America sent one its pathfinding machines to Meadow found that Queens Boulevard is in fine condition from Queensboro Bridge to Jamaica. This road was formerly called Thompson avenue from Queensboro Bridge to the railroad crossing at Winfield and Hoffman Boulevard from this latter point to Hillside avenue in Jamaica. The name of the entire road has been changed to Queens Boulevard since its improvement under supervision of the borough of Queens highway department. A short stretch of road is being repaired one side at a time so that it does not interfere with traffic near the Peace Monument on Hillside avenue in Jamaica, Good conditions otherwise exist on the Rocky Hill road, Jericho Turnpike and other roads, for which directions were given in the Sunday edition of THE SUN to Mineola. After reaching the Old Country road at this place a fine new macadam surface has been placed on this road and leads to Merrick avenue, where a turn right of about one mile leads to the entrance of the Meadow Brook Hunt Club. This road has just been finished and was opened to traffic Sunday, June 7.
